Washington county court is teaching the Vermont legislature a lesson in diligence.

The Rutland Evening News coined the name "Pay-villain" to be applied to a Montpelier hotel, and thus takes front rank with the punsters.

A newspaper headline says: "Looks like Dunnett of St. Johnsbury." Where is he? Let's see the man who could look like Dunnett. Still, Alex. would make a good United States district attorney.

Let's fall to and give the Vermont association in Boston a rousing welcome when they come to Vermont next month. The particular objective point is Montpelier, but we can all unite in extending a welcome to the capital of the state.

Those who have not studied the theory and practice of baseball for a score or more years may become bewildered to hear that the "Cubs" beat the "White Sox," or vice versa. Only the especially learned are able to follow the national game as it is played and written nowadays.

Why didn't Messrs. Senter and Archibald form a collaboration in drawing up a bill for the abolishing of capital punishment? Did each one have an itching to have his "ownest own" name tacked to such an important document if it ever becomes a law? They were co-workers in the Mary Rogers case.

Many of the strongest men of the House have not yet been heard from. Messrs. Hubbard of Hyde Park, Fletcher of Weymouth and Mead of Rutland, for instance, have as yet taken no active part in the discussions of the House, but no one disputes their ability if they so elect. Well, better to save your powder than waste it on imaginary foes.—Vermont Enterprise and Vermonter.

before leaping into the limelight; and it is particularly fitting that these legislators should look before they leap. Quite often men of real worth whose modesty holds them back until they are "discovered," or who hold themselves in reserve until the proper time comes—quite often they become the strong men of the legislature. Because a man thrusts himself to the forefront is not necessarily solid ground for the stability of the position; it is, on the contrary, quite apt to lead him to a fall. The men mentioned here by the contemporary will most certainly stand well at the head before the legislative session ends, and there will be others in the same row with them.

IN A MODEST WAY.

To the local committee of arrangements for the State Medical society convention, which was held in Barre Thursday and Friday, a good deal of credit is due, for they worked under certain disadvantages, the most onerous of which was the securing of accommodations for the entertainment of delegates and visitors. It became necessary to fall back on the old scheme of securing places in private houses and the canvass for places necessitated considerable labor. But even with this handicap the arrangements for the convention went along smoothly and the result was a highly successful session of the medical men. There was being held at the same time another state convention, although smaller—that of the Grand Lodge, Good Templars. Both the conventions were taken care of in good shape, which encourages Barre to put in a modest bid for future conventions of these two bodies and of similar state organizations. Among other things of interest visitors have a splendid opportunity to witness the operations in some of the greatest granite quarries of the country and in the best equipped granite manufacturing plants of the world.

STRICT AUDIT ONLY REMEMBY.

The arrest and prompt conviction of a trades union official in Burlington, who afterwards acknowledged that he stole union money, shows how necessary it is to have a careful audit of books at the end of each quarter. There is comparatively little dishonesty in the trades union movement of today, as the average official is intelligent enough to know that it pays to be square and above board; but the unions, in common with all other organizations, contain a certain per centage of men who cannot resist temptation, and as a matter of protection to all parties concerned it pays to make careful audits.—Vermont Union Signal.

It is the misfortune of labor unions as well as of other organizations that all men are not honest and that occasionally the scoundrels get into office where they can lay their long fingers in to the common strong-box. We must recognize this fact and without taking any chances of mixing the good with the bad we must remove as far as possible the opportunity for the long-fingered game. That can be done, as the contemporary says, only by requiring a strict system of audit, and that with considerable stress on the adjective "strict." Those unions and those organizations which leave accounts to their servants, trusting in their honesty, would do well to lock the door before the horse is stolen. Harsh as the advice may sound, it is the only businesslike method.

SAVE YOUR DIMES

Most people need a plan to help them save. Nearly all have the desire to save but, somehow, they never quite get to it. A good many people think that when they get $25 or $50 they will start a bank account, but, some way, that amount accumulates very slowly. The better way is to start the bank account when you have a spare dollar and then add to it every month. It is surprising how some accounts started in this way grow.

Some people save all their ten-cent pieces and deposit them in the bank each month, and if you wish to start a bank account may we not suggest that you come in and open an account with $1 and take one of our little pocket banks, then whenever you get a dime drop it in the little bank and once a month come in and we will give you credit for the amount. Some people that we know of are saving $5 and $6 every month by this method. Why not try it?

DON'T FOR GOODNESS SAKE

even think of sending any money away for a range, particularly a steel range, while we can show you the "range of the year," the now famous ROUND OAK CHIEF. Firstly, we need the money here at home. Secondly, after looking through this good range and perhaps comparing it in your mind with some others you have seen we are sure the Chief will capture your good opinion. Thirdly, the reason why it will do this is because it is good. You can see quality sticking right out of it any place you look; not only good material, the best money will buy, but fine workmanship, made on honor, honestly good and worth every cent of the reasonable price we ask for it. You will say so. We would just like to have you step in and see what we consider the finest example of steel range making we have ever offered for sale. We mean it. ASK FOR THE RANGE BOOK.
